IAMLADP COMBINED TRAINING COURSE
CUSTOMISING LINGUISTIC TOOLS AND RESOURCES FOR TRANSLATION PRACTICE

Training course at the Centre for Translation Studies (CTS) University of Leeds, under the auspices of the IAMLADP Working Group on Training, Universities Contact Group (USG), 24 - 28 April, 2017

Brief description of course and training to be provided to participants:

Overview and practice with some of the latest tools and research topics relevant for staff of Translation and Documentation Sections

By the end of the workshop you will have a clear idea of how you can improve your use of some of the most relevant commercial, as well as free language technologies, including language corpora, machine translation evaluation procedures and post-editing, subtitling, and automatic speech recognition technologies.

Specifically, you will gain experience in the following areas:

1. Integrating Automatic Speech Recognition (ASR) into professional subtitling and translation workflows and technologies;
2. Building and using multilingual corpora for translation purposes;
3. New technologies and standards for review;
5. Insight into Multimodality issues in Translation and Localization of resources;
6. Overview of recent Centre for Translation Studies research projects in Translation Studies.

This is a primarily hands-on week, where challenges inspired by your own work environment will be explored using the variety of ASR, CAT, subtitling and MT tools available in the CTS. The information you will provide at registration time regarding your expectations from this workshop, as well as your role and experience with language technologies in your organisation, will be used to ensure the workshop content and activities are relevant to your work environment.

Target audience:

A member of staff with responsibilities for translation, review, documentation, or collation of translation resources and terminology databases, and/or with a strategic mandate for investigating the potential of new technologies.

Language of tuition:

English

Date:
24 - 28 April, 2017

Venue:
CTS, University of Leeds, Woodhouse Lane Leeds, LS2 9JT, Leeds, UK
Number of available places*: Maximum 12

Cost: Under IAMLADP exchange arrangements, the course is free of charge for translation professionals from member organisations, in exchange for teaching and guidance to the CTS MA students:
- participants will normally be expected to contribute 6-10 hours each;
- depending on their language combinations, participants may devote these sessions to practical translation or revision exercises based on the text-types in which they specialise, discussions of the participants' own work experiences, or talks on general translation issues and practices of the language services in their organisations (translation workflows, terminology management, use of language technologies, quality assurance, and career opportunities at all the represented organisations). These sessions are usually co-taught, and participants will be asked for suggestions for materials before the course.

A provisional schedule with details of the teaching sessions - morning sessions taught by the CTS staff and afternoon sessions delivered by the participants to the CTS students - will be provided once registrations are finalised.
